WASHINGTON—Members of the President's official family are clustering around the patronage prospects of the new farm census like honeybees around a molasses pot.

First it was Presidential Secretary Louey Howe who tried to get a relative placed on the census rolls. Now it is Uncle Dan Roper, Secretary of Commerce.

Hugh McCall, brother-in-law of Uncle Dan, operates a farm near Clio, S. C.

Roper decided to put him on the payroll as a district supervisor and asked William L. Austin, director of the Census Bureau, to appoint him.

This put Austin in a dilemma. Although Roper is his immediate superior, jobs for the farm census are the special prerogative of Democratic House members.

Austin explained the situation to Roper. The latter told him to leave it to him.

He sent an emissary to Allard H. Gasque, representative from McCall's district with a trading offer—Gasque to offer no objection to the appointment of Roper's brother-in-law, and in exchange to receive appointments to two jobs in the Commerce Department.

Gasque is still considering the offer, but it is a sure bet he will accept. Two plums for one is not bad trade.

So What?

Pennsylvania's Governor-elect George Earle was present at the opening ceremonies of Congress.

As the first Democratic Governor of the Keystone state in many decades he was the object of much flattering attention. But one unknown took a fall out of him.

Earle was surrounded by an admiring group when the stranger walked up and asked:

"Are you Governor Earle?"

"Yes."

"THE Governor Earle?"

"Yes."

"So what?" the stranger remarked, and calmly walked away leaving Earle blinking.

Speaker-Fisherman

Catching a six-pound trout with a "plover line" may sound like the product of an elastic imagination, but that's the story of Speaker Joe Byrns, and he sticks to it.

At a lake in Glacier National Park where he was vacationing, a guide took Byrns and another guest fishing for pickerel. After trolling all day neither got a strike. The tackle, Joe explains, was cord heavy enough to use for a plover line, and a triple-gang hook with a huge hunk of meat on it.

The guide, abashed at the empty fish-coffers of his charges, decided the tackle was too heavy, and stopped at a saw mill to borrow lighter equipment. Only one pole and line were available, and Byrns generously resigned in favor of his fishing mate.

While the guide and mate departed for another effort, Byrns located a nearby dam, at the bottom of which was a deep pool. He whirled the heavy meat-laden hook around several times, and let go with a hammer-throwing gesture that he now uses for calling the House to order.

No sooner had it struck the water than an immense fish gobbled it and started off. After minutes of intense fighting, Byrns managed to land it—a six-pound salmon trout, largest caught in years.

And—

At dark, when his fishing mate returned with the guide he still had caught nothing.

Rival A. F. of L.

Some of the Barons of Big Business have a labor organization scheme up their sleeves that will send a cold chill down the spines of craft union moguls of the A. F. of L. when they hear about it.

The plan is a wily strategical move.

The employers propose organizing company unions along industrial, or vertical lines.

That is, craft unions are to be wiped out and the workers asked to join plant locals which will be branches of a national union covering the entire industry all over the country.

These big national units in turn will be affiliated into a general Continued On Page Five

WHITE FREES THREE LIFERS FROM PRISON

Boggs Brother and Jake Nesbitt Released by Executive Clemency

ALL 3 NOTORIOUS

Action Comes As One of Last Official Moves

COLUMBUS, Jan. 10.—Governor George White today had commuted sentences of three notorious life term prisoners in the Ohio penitentiary as "acts of mercy" in the waning days of his administration. He succeeded Monday by Martin L. Davey.

Two of the prisoners are Dan and John Boggs, Jackson-co brothers, sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of a Hillsboro policeman in 1925.

The other was Jacob "Jake" Nesbitt, of Troy, who was serving a life term after confessing the "red rage" murder of his wife, Mrs. Frances Drake Nesbitt, former Ohio State university co-ed.

Nesbitt was in virtual hiding today while waiting for a wave of publicity to die down.

Dan Boggs then aged 20, and John, 23, were convicted at the January, 1925, term of the High-land-co common pleas court. They were accused of shooting Patrolman Harry T. McGill during a robbery in Hillsboro.

In his statement announcing the immediate commutation of their sentences, the governor said:

HONOR PRISONERS

"These men have been honor prisoners in the penitentiary and have made the best of their incarceration. John has acquired a degree of bachelor of law and in aeronautical engineering and radio technology, whereas Dan has become interested in advertising and has started a small business while in this institution."

"Both of the Boggs are married. Jackson-co and both are married. They were recommended by many people, including organizations from all over the United States."

"The governor has just received a recommendation from the Columbus Advertising Club which is signed by all prominent advertising firms of this city."

Dan's advertising business consisted of the preparation of a series of "human" form letters on different subjects which he sold to business firms. Through his mail order trade, he was able to buy his mother a small home in Jackson, send his sister through school, and set her up in a small business.

Nesbitt, who was sentenced to the prison in 1926 will enter business here with a partner, it was reported. His exact plans, however, were shielded by officials of the Ohio penitentiary and the state welfare department.

RELEASE SECRET

Release of the prisoner was not announced at the governor's office until almost two hours after Nesbitt actually walked from the prison—a free man, and the public did not know of it until today. However, it had been rumored for some time and there was little, if any, opposition to his release. Both Wardens P. E. Thomas and State Welfare Director John McSweeney of Wooster had recommended it.

By his action, the governor technically reduced Nesbitt's prison sentence from life to 13 years. However, with time off for good behavior, it allowed Nesbitt's immediate release. Nesbitt, now 37 years old, had expressed hope through his attorney prior to his

'STRAW' CASE CARRIED UP

Container Corporation Seeks Review of Ford Suit In Supreme Court.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 9.—Seeking to avoid payment of $970 awarded John, Chester and Wilbert Ford an alleged unpaid balance due on deliveries of straw, the Container Corporation of America, Circleville branch, today asked the state supreme court to review action of Pickaway-co courts.

The Container Corporation purchased straw for use in the manufacture of strawboard from the Fords, who formerly lived in Pickaway-co. When a dispute arose over the amount to be deducted from the purchase price for water in the straw, the Fords sued, and were allowed $970 by the common pleas court in February, 1934. The appellate court affirmed the judgment.

The district court of appeals will meet here March 27 and Nov. 6 during 1935, it was announced in Clerk A. L. Wilder's office Thursday. The new court is comprised of Judges P. J. Blosser, H. Middleton and Russell McCurdy, the latter the new member.

At present only two cases are pending for the March 27 session, the Williams estate action and the specific performance of contract suit of Etta Adkins against Gertrude Long.

Same Method Used As At Adelphi Bank

No clues have as yet been unearthed to the identity of the Adelphi safecrackers.

Camera Studies of Jafsie in Flemington Court

Climax of the prosecution of Bruno Hauptmann for the alleged slaying of the Lindbergh baby was halled when Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon, of the Bronx, ransom negotiator, was called to the witness stand. Camera studies of Dr. Condon in the Flemington courtroom are shown above.

DEFENSE TRIES TO LINK AGENT IN LINDY PLOT

"Jafsie" Takes Stand Second Time to Face Cross Examination

PUTS UP GOOD FIGHT

Bruno Says: "Man Must Be Crazy"

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 10.—Dr. John F. ("Jafsie") Condon, the Lindbergh go-between, was back on the stand today at the Bruno Richard Hauptmann murder trial facing another barrage of cross-examination by the defense which apparently is trying to link him with the kidnapping plot.

"Jafsie" was a brilliant and effective witness for the prosecution until the final hour of his cross-petition late yesterday when he became a bit confused. But he was in there fighting and rallied at the bell.

CONDON IN VICTORY

Several strange admissions were wrung from Condon during the two hours he was under relentless cross-examination by Edward J. Reilly, the big, bluff counsel for the defense. Yet when adjournment was taken until this morning the consensus seemed to be that, for the most part, Condon had emerged victorious.

Condon dealt a severe blow to Hauptmann on direct examination when he three times dramatically declared the mysterious "John" to whom he paid the $50,000 ransom in St. Raymond's cemetery on the night of April 2, 1932, was Bruno Richard Hauptmann. This identification was still unshaken under cross-examination when he left the stand at the end of the day.

The incommensurable "Jafsie" fought Reilly tooth and nail. It was a great show and the spectators thrilled to it. The clash of wits between Condon and Reilly easily was the high-light of the trial to date.

AIDED JOHNSON

Reilly forced Condon to admit he was prompted to write the Bronx Home News a letter on March 7, volunteering his services as intermediary with the kidnappers because he felt sorry for Henry ("Red") Johnson, who at that time was being questioned in connection with the crime.

"Why were you sorry?" Reilly wanted to know. And Condon was quick with the explanation. He told the defense lawyer and the jury he had talked to a lot of sailors and they told him Johnson was a fine young fellow and not guilty.

Besides Condon also felt sorry for the "under-dog."

Johnson was a friend of Miss Betty Gow, the Lindbergh nurse. He is now in Norway and is reputed to be willing, if not eager to testify.

Condon became confused toward the end of his cross-examination yesterday afternoon when Reilly questioned him at length concerning the first note he received from the kidnaper, or kidnappers, in response to an advertisement.

"PROBLEM" YOUTH ON GOFF'S HANDS

Frank Goff, juvenile officer, had a "problem" boy on his hands today after police arrested Albert Hall, 10, who gave his address as 355 Cherry-ave, Marion, Ohio.

The boy snatched the purse carried by Mrs. William Clark, W. Huston-st., on an uptown street about 9 p. m. Wednesday.

She reported the robbery to police who found the boy. He had thrown the purse aside but took its contents, 90 cents.

Trying to check the boy's residence, Marion police, who were called by Goff, had been unable at noon today to locate his parents. They were to make a further check of the city schools.

Goff is even doubtful if the youngster's name is Hall.

he had placed in the Bronx Home News.

The dramatic high-light of Condon's testimony came on direct examination when he described his conversation with "John" the night he first met him in Woodlawn cemetery and made arrangements for the ransom payment. At one point in his story about "John" he said:

"I asked how he happened to get into such a scrape, a man like he was. I praised him and I meant it! A man like you, what would your mother say if she knew? And he said: 'My mother wouldn't like it. She would cry.'"

The court room was again tense as Reilly started his questioning as court adjourned this morning. He started where he left off at adjournment Wednesday discussing a note found under a rock.

Hauptmann, who was brought into court at 9:49 a. m., earlier than usual, told a reporter: "I feel pretty good." Asked what he thought of Condon's testimony he muttered:

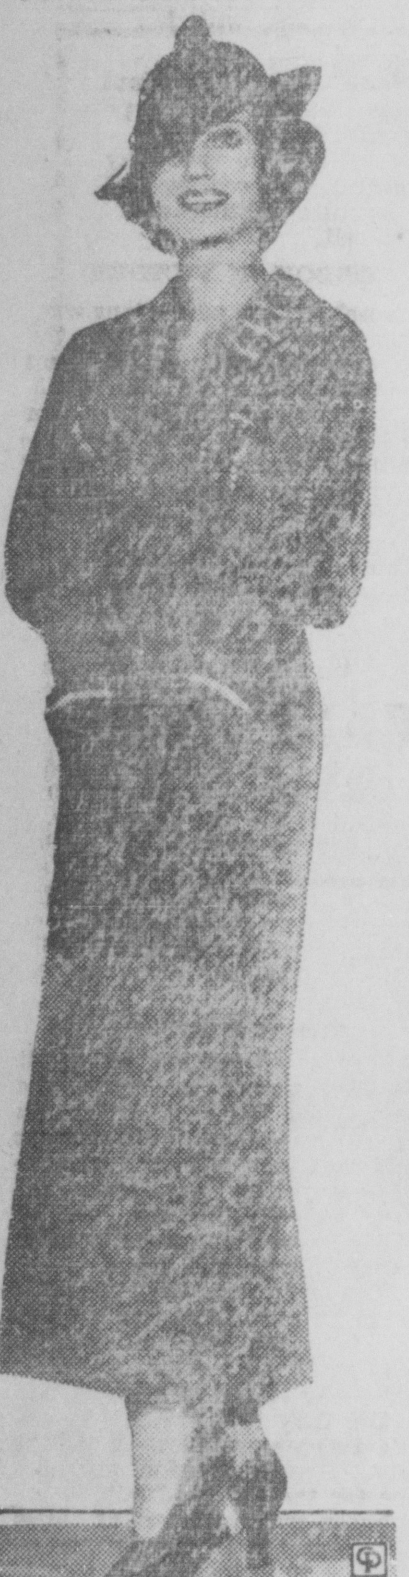

"That man must be crazy."

HAUPTMANN PALE

If Bruno Hauptmann is convicted of the murder of the Lindbergh baby, he will be taken immediately to the New Jersey state prison, at Trenton, shown here from the air. Should the extreme penalty release to "rebuild a little shack of respect."

His case probably was one of the two or three most sensational in the criminal history of the state. An orphan boy, Nesbitt married Frances Drake, former champion tennis player at the University, in January 1925. Little more than a year later, on February 19, 1926, Mrs. Nesbitt was found beaten to death in the blood-spattered bathroom of her home. Her body was found in the bath tub.

The murder weapon never has been discovered and although investigators had expressed belief that he had used a golf club. For three weeks after the crime, Nesbitt remained at freedom all the while making a pretense of helping authorities solve the case.

CLEARED BY SLATER

A shocked and aroused citizenry at Troy then hired Private Detective Ora Slater, of Cincinnati, to probe the case. Slater obtained a confession from Nesbitt after gaining his confidence on March 12, 1926. Nesbitt said his wife had been nagging him, that he was distraught over her continual taunts and that he suddenly was consumed by a "red rage." Details of the killing were never elaborated on by Nesbitt. On May 1 he pleaded guilty and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Governor White also announced that the sentence of Sarafino Sinatra, alias Joe ("Wop") (English, has been commuted to life imprisonment.

Sinatra was convicted at the January, 1934, term of the common pleas court of Lucas-co of charges of first-degree murder and was sentenced to death in the electric chair.

Races Have Odor

It is quite possible that other races can detect the odor of the white race, Denker, in his "The Races of Man," refers to the fact that certain travelers have asserted they could recognize a population by its odor. The author admits that some ethnic groups have their specific odor, which gets fainter with scrupulous cleanliness, but never disappears.

A BUILDER, GIVES PEP

MANY folks have
—they're weak, feel
tired, lousy and dull.
Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a dependable tonic
which will increase the appetite, eliminate poisons from the intestines. It stimu-lates the digestion,
and you gain in vim, vigor and vitality.

Read what Daniel Readson of 207 No. Horton St., Jackson, Mich., said: "Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery restored my lost health and strength only a few years ago. I was working hard in all kinds of weather and suffering from colds almost continually through the winter months. A friend told me to try the "Discovery." This tonic gave me a better appetite and I gained in weight and strength."

WATCH KIDNEYS SAME AS BOWELS

Wash Out Your 79,200 Feet of Kidney Tubes

Your bowels contain only 27 feet of intestines, yet the kidneys contain nearly 10 million tiny tubes or filters which would measure 79,200 feet if laid end to end.
Therefore, it is just as important to watch the kidneys as the bowels. Kidneys are working all the time and are Nature's chief way of taking the acids and poisonous waste out of the blood.

Healthy persons pass 8 pints a day thru the bladder which contains nearly 4 pounds of waste matter. If you pass less than this amount, your 79,200 feet of kidney tubes may be clogged with poisonous waste. This is the danger signal and may be the beginning of racing backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

Kidneys should be watched closely and need cleaning out the same as bowels. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, an old prescription, which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out your 79,200 feet of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs and so-called "kidney cures" which claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Your common sense will tell you that this is impossible.
Treatments of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS, the old reliable relief that contains no "dope" or habit-forming drugs.
Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist.

PATTERN 9230

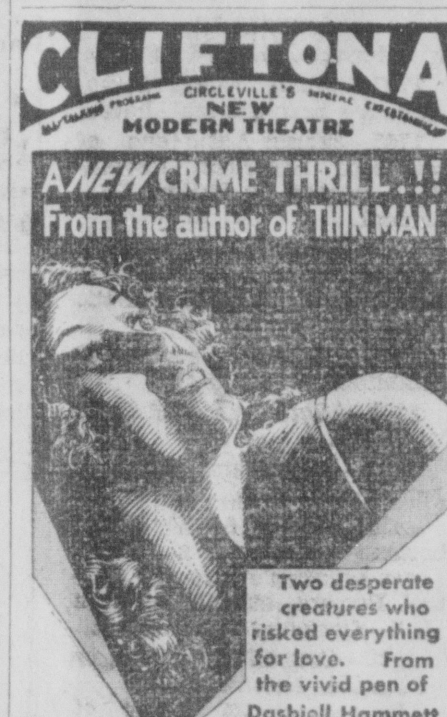

Young six-to-sixteen year olds who like their frocks to be every bit as chic as their college-going sisters' will find this a dress to satisfy the most clothes-conscious young heart! They'll like the round-over-the-shoulder yoke, and the way the bodice is gathered on to it at the back to make it soft and full. And they'll approve heartily of the smart stitched pleats at the front and the puffed sleeves. If it is a school frock they are pining away over, make it of a printed or plain cotton broadcloth. But if they want a really dress-up frock, then pastel silk-crepe or lawn would be charming—and in that case the sleeves may be left open in pretty flares.

Pattern 9230 may be ordered only in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 12 requires 2 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric.

THE HEADACHE FOLLOWS

IN discussing the issue of peace and war it has lately become the habit to dismiss the possibility of certain countries engaging in war because "they are too poor to fight." The statement rests on a foundation so unsubstantial as to be completely illusory.

None who remembers the economic state of the world in 1914 would advance such an argument. The World war proved that economic conditions, no matter how unfavorable to war, do not keep nations from warring upon one another. No fact has been more clearly demonstrated than that in taking up arms a nation is not necessarily handicapped by the absence of a full war chest or a complete war arsenal.

Immediately on the outbreak of the World war all peace-time economic checks were suspended. The nations harnessed themselves to war—making under a regime which, like that of present-day Russia, forbade internal competition. Production was speeded up until the return of peace found every belligerent overproducing everything from wheat to ore.

This is not saying that all nations discover that they are El Dorados when they go to war. Some are poorer than others in natural resources, but under the necessity imposed by war they obtain far more than previously out of their potential wealth, and rely on borrowing for the rest. In war time nations will cheerfully assume huge obligations to pay for necessary commodities, reserving the reckoning to an unknown future, when they find that they were beyond their means. Another war emergency measure is the dilution of the purchasing power of currency by running the government printing presses overtime.

Nations embarking upon a war never inquire whether they can afford a war. Rather they often look upon war in much the same way that distressed business looks upon bankruptcy.

THE RACE

A MARATHON runner likens life to a foot race. St. Paul in his letters of nearly two thousand years ago used the same figure of speech!

"Wherefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses let us lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so heavily beset us and let us run with patience the race that is set before us."

The analogy between a marathon and the race of life is, after all, not so complete as the simile suggests. Only those run marathons who choose to do so for the keen love of it. The hope of reaching the goal is the incentive and arriving is the reward. Pheidippides dying at the end of his marathon found his meed in the shout of the people who acclaimed his feat. But for most the race of life is run without high reward.

The pure love of doing is denied millions who contribute each his unidentifiable and often infinitesimal part to a product which is wholly impersonal. They run with patience the race, but without the cloud of witnesses, without the acclaim of this indistinguishable achievement except by those who are near to them in like service or dear in their homes.

The failure of so many, who run, to reach their goal is because they stop before they get their second wind. Most people never learn what their capacities are, because they do not run the race with continuing patience.

The attitude of the banks, says an economist, is now more liberal, but they still draw the line at a loan in anticipation of our winning the next Irish sweepstakes.

A psychologist says that Huey Long is one of those boys who never grow up. Logically, then, he should stick to his marbles instead of playing at statesmanship.

The name of the present heavyweight champion of the world and the date of his last fight can probably be ascertained by browsing through the old files of almost any daily newspaper.

Railroad men running a railroad in Colorado couldn't pay the interest on an RFC loan, so the government took it over and politicians will run it, paying the interest with taxpayers' money.

A painter has been dropped by the National Academy of Design for representing as an original work a copy of a masterpiece. The academy, taking a rather narrow view of the matter, made no allowance for the fact that it was a very good copy.

Little Sister

BY MARGARET WIDDEMER

READ THIS FIRST

After reading a letter from her reckless young sister, Bet, announcing her proposed elopement with a carpenter, Leila Madison rushes to New York from her suburban home where she lives with her Aunt Minnie. The sisters are orphans and members of an old Westchester family. Arriving outside her sister's apartment, Leila, who virtually is engaged to Orton Johnston-Hedges, her aristocratic neighbor, runs into Jerry Redmond. He, too, as a roommate at Yale of the brother of Bet's fiancé, is striving to halt the elopement. Jerry says the prospective bridegroom is Addison Huntington, a romantic radical, masquerading as Stark Freeman. Leila and Jerry find Bet and her roommate, Edna, waiting for Addy. He arrives a moment later. Jerry tells Addy the police want to question him about an acquaintance of his named Jarecki so they disguise Addy in girl's clothes. The police arrive and promise to return when they cannot find Stark Freeman, one remaining on guard outside the apartment. Jerry explains why he is trying to save Addy from the police. When the police return, they are all released after Jerry identifies the group. All except Edna motor to Leila's home and there Aunt Minnie, who is having tea with Mrs. Johnston-Hedges and Orton, meets Jerry and Addy who now has removed his feminine disguise. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 12

"WHAT A PEACEFUL little spot this is!" said Addison serenely to Mrs. Johnston-Hedges, to whom he had nestled from the first. "I can imagine nothing more."

He was interrupted by a loud ring at the bell. They all looked round. Behind the screen door, open still to let in the cool wind, stood a large, purposeful policeman.

It was Jane, the Scottie, who first rose to the occasion. That is, if you can call a policeman an occasion. She leaped from her devoted pose at her mistress's feet and dashed at the screen door, barking hysterically. Jane never did have tact about policemen; she even sometimes seemed to feel that she had to make up for the cringes of her family by telling them what she really thought of them in a very rude way. She threw the screen in a passionate hope of getting through it and having a piece of him about halfway up the leg. Leila, who had been sitting still in her weariness, rose automatically. She was as used to getting Jane out of trouble as she was her sister Bet.

"Good afternoon. Won't you come in? Is there anything I can do?" she asked with the brilliant smile and abject courtesy learned by those who have often been ordered to pull over to the curb. "Hush, Jane, it's a nice gentleman."

"Well, I will, I guess," said the policeman noncommittally. He entered, dropped into the nearest chair and ran a practiced eye over the assemblage. The eye caught on Mrs. Johnston-Hedges and stayed there. She was the sort of person who looks like a personage even in Turkish baths. Sitting here having tea with Aunt Minnie, she was awe-inspiring. The policeman put his cap on his knees, set his large feet together, moved them apart and replaced them, and said quite gently:

"Well, I tell you, I don't want to disturb no afternoon tea party. She says not to say who she is, because she doesn't want to get you mad, but she says she calls your dogs a public nuisance. You see, lady—" he correctly addressed Leila, as possessing the visible dog—"when you go out to feed them dogs at 6 p. m.,

The policeman and Orton were very chummy.

she wakes up because of hearing barking."

"She wakes at 6 in the evening?"

"She wakes at 6 in the evening?"

"Well, it's like this," said the policeman. "She's nervous. She always naps till 6:30 and then washes and dresses and all. Personally," he added apologetically, as her well-known eye, worth a large block of clubwomen votes, remained boring into him, "I don't think it's any harm for no pooch to yelp at that hour. But you know how they are when they're nervous; her husband has to do as she wants him, too, and she's got him after us."

Leila took a long breath of relief. Better a thousand complaints about her dogs than one policeman tracking this little wretch of Bet's and arresting him in their house for forgery or whatever it was. It was, of course, shrewish hysterical Mrs. Van Dyne down the block, that chronic complainer no neighborhood is without.

But before she could meet the policeman's implied plea for compassion the relief snapped Bet's control; never much at the best of times. She lunged herself on Addison's broadened neck and let loose a fit of hysterics better than anything Mrs. Van Dyne could do at her best. The policeman wriggled a little. It was probably not his first fit of hysterics that day, if he had been dealing with Mrs. Van Dyne.

"Perhaps I better come back when the young lady feels better," he said. Orton rose to the occasion as Leila would have him. He stood up, setting down his sherry. He smiled at the officer with that man-to-man air which yet has in it a hint of authority.

"Well, well, you've been to a lot of trouble, officer. Come out on the porch where we can hear each other talk. We can straighten this thing out better by ourselves."

The policeman followed him thankfully around the corner of the veranda.

"If you have some ginger ale and ice..." he dropped into Leila's ear as they passed her. Jerry sat up in his chair. It was easy enough for Orton to be spotless and self; all he had been doing was sitting still in a cool room. But Jerry, Leila noted enviously, was quite unmannered in spite of all his experiences.

"Your son has swell ideas," he said placidly to Mrs. Johnston-Hedges. "Make it three glasses, Leila," ordered Mrs. Johnston-Hedges, at her most genial. "Go out there, too, Mr. Redmond. I'm sure you have something to talk over with them."

"Thanks, but I'd rather stay with you," he said gallantly. Leila was relieved in spite of herself; whatever she might feel toward Jerry Redmond personally, without him she was rather like a stranger who has been left with a keener strange animal. He was a check on Addison Huntington.

They had up to now been talking through Bet's shrieks. By now the shrieks were stopping, which was odd, if you knew Bet, because nobody had ever been able to stop her doing anything.

Addison was remaining quite calm. He was picking her off his neck, he was putting her back in a chair, he was looking at her sternly.

"Elizabeth, you are acting like a child," he said.

And Bet, instead of replying stormily that she would act the way she wanted to, was actually quiet. She sat up and mopped off her face and began to do it over again out of her vanity.

Leila with a relieved, if astonished, mind went out and got the ice and glasses and ginger ale for the soothing of the policeman. He and Orton were very chummy and cheerful over Orton's cigars, and the drinks made things wonderful. She lingered while Orton poured rye, and until, indeed, the policeman and she had come to an agreement which was almost loving. She was to feed her dogs a half hour later. And the policeman, who disliked Mrs. Van Dyne more than she did, was to report any further barking as acts of God. She wanted to stay with Orton, but she hurried back to her explosive guests. All was quite calm there, too.

The young suitor grimaced. "She promised to put me on her wading list," he replied.

Daily Bath Is Factor in Health

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

DESPITE THE combined efforts of the medical profession, social service institutions, public health and public school officials, the welfare of many school children is neglected. Indeed, it is amazing to learn of the many unsanitary practices still continued in some sections of the country.

A recent survey of more than two thousand school children, ranging from eight to sixteen years of age, is proof of what I say. This report indicated that though more than 96 per cent of these children bathed at least once a week, less than 50 per cent bathed more frequently.

Personal hygiene is essential to good health. Bathing is the primary requisite of all body hygiene. This was not the belief of our forefathers. At one time they were so greatly disturbed over the idea of bathing the entire body that a law was passed in Philadelphia prohibiting tub bathing. In fact the medical profession in the early part of the nineteenth century advised against frequent bathing.

Stimulating and Relaxing

Daily bathing has many advantages. In addition to removing accumulated dirt, it permits the pores of the skin to remain open. Body toxins or poisons are excreted through the lungs in the form of expired air, and through the kidneys in the urine. But by means of the sweat glands certain poisonous substances escape from the body.

The daily bath is stimulating and relaxing. It rouses the appetite, refreshes tired nerves and relaxes the body. Nothing is more satisfying than the friction you give your skin after you soak in a tub for a few minutes. The body becomes alive and glowing with increased vitality and energy.

Warm baths are soothing and aid in promoting rest and relaxation. They are very beneficial when taken at night just before bedtime. Mild cases of insomnia are often relieved by this simple measure.

A Daily Ritual

Cold baths are stimulating and are best taken in the morning before the day's work is begun. Extremely hot or cold baths are often detrimental to health. Children and elderly adults should avoid them. Of course, if you are accustomed to cold showers they will not harm you. A good plan is to always follow a cold shower or tub with a brisk rub.

The young child should be taught to bathe daily. As soon as the child is old enough he may take his bath without assistance. Care should be exercised and the child warned of the danger of scalding hot water. Whenever possible the bath should be a daily ritual and practiced more frequently than once a week.

WHITE, DAVEY AT ODDS AS $8,000 INAUGURAL NEARS

WHITE IS IRED BY STATEMENT

Governor-Elect Says "After Jan. 14, Paroles Are Not For Sale."

COLUMBUS, Jan. 10.—The impending inauguration of Martin L. Davey as governor of Ohio today took on some of the aspects of those "battles of a century" in which Jack Dempsey was a drawing card.

Contrary to accepted rules of the political game, a retiring Democratic governor, George White, and an incoming Democratic governor, Davey, will sit side by side on the inaugural platform next Monday, inwardly knashing teeth at each other though for the benefit of an admiring public, smiles may wreath their faces.

For several years White and Davey have not been on the best of terms politically. Now they are engaged in as interesting an exchange of invectives as the Buckeye state ever witnesses.

On two successive governors of the same political party.

CRITICIZES $8,000
Their current dispute centers around White's veiled criticism of the $8,000 state appropriation Davey asked for the inauguration and around a remark Davey made in Kent this week about pardons and paroles not being for sale while he is governor, to which White took offense.

White deeply resented the implication in Davey's statement which was quoted to the governor as follows:

"After Jan. 14, and for the next two years pardons and paroles in Ohio will not be for sale."

Burning with rage, Governor White dictated the following statement in reply to his successor:

"One of the most annoying problems my administration has been the appeals made to me in behalf of inmates of penal institutions by some second-rate lawyers only interested in obtaining a fee.

"Having heard many rumors about the manner in which pardons and paroles will be given under Governor Davey, I am reassured by his public statement, 'That they will not be for sale.'"

"I am sure that all those really interested in the welfare of the state and in the inmates of our

Ohio Welcomes New Governor In Inaugural Ceremonies

correctional institutions, will be glad to hear that the persistent rumors are, according to Mr. Davey, untrue."

"Davey, reported by Democratic state headquarters to be enroute for Washington for another conference with federal relief officials, could not be reached for comment. He was expected here tomorrow.

His lieutenant, Francis Poulson, Democratic state committee chairman, said:

"It is unfortunate such controversies have to occur. But I know nothing about it all."

RELEASES NESBITT

After issuing the pointed statement, White announced commutation of the life sentence of Jacob C. Nesbitt, Troy wife-slayer, to expire at once. Nesbitt has been chauffeur for Welfare Director John McSweeney.

When Senate Republicans passed up a chance to criticize Davey's request for an $8,000 appropriation for his inaugural, White did so in a letter to Finance Director Clarence Burk, giving copies to the press. He pointed out that the total cost of his two inaugurations was $3,590.

House Republicans promised "plenty of fireworks" when the appropriation bill carrying the Davey request comes up for their concurrence, probably next Tuesday.

OHIO TO FACE ILLINOIS FIVE SATURDAY EVE

Task of Stopping Froshauer, Gutschow, Riegel Tough One; Smith Is Shifted.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 10.—Ohio State university will open its Big Ten home season Saturday night against one of the most promising title contenders—the University of Illinois.

Both teams have won and lost one contest while battling for positions in the Big Ten race this week. Ohio was defeated by Iowa and two nights later pulled an overtime game out of the fire at Michigan. After losing to Indiana by four points last Saturday night the Illini furnished the first big upset of the season on Monday evening by trimming the highly rated Purdue five, 37 to 36.

FROSHAUER STAR

The Illini, headed by Frank Froshauer, frog scoring forward who has led the Blue and Gold in baskets the last two years and was fourth in the conference scoring last year, are a slight favorite over the small Buck quintet. Gutschow is another veteran forward in good standing on the Illinois team. Whether or not the Buck guards can hold down these two axes along with Bob Riegel, sophomore center, may spell victory or defeat.

Coach Harold Olsen is continuing his policy of juggling the lineup among his "nine regulars." Monday night he switched Inwood Smith, rugged football player from Mansfield, from guard to forward and he teamed up nicely with Bruce Laybourne, the Bucks high scoring ace. Just what his starting lineup will be Saturday night probably will be unknown until a few moments before game time.

FIRST SINCE DEC. 15

Saturday night's game will mark the first home appearance of the Bucks since Dec. 15 and the last until January 21 when the University of Chicago plays here.

BABB TO OFFICIATE

All boys' squads in the county will enter the elimination while only the four leading girls' teams will compete, these four having the highest winning percentage during the season. As announced here last week, Kroger Babb, of Wilmington, will again officiate. A popular official, Babb turned down several other offers to take the county tournament because he and Dr. Blackburn are good friends.

Drawings for the tourney will be made a few days before the meet starts.

SPYING on SPORTS

By BILL BRAUCHER, Central Press Sports Writer

If Max Baer isn't a great champion, never let it be said he couldn't sneer like one. And before he leaves the ring beaten, or leaps from the fistful of rope into the fire of Hollywood, he is going to be part of an unforgettable fighting picture.

He already has sneered enough to convince the most skeptical that here is a champion born to fight. How much he will sneer if he happens to be hurt by some ambitious adversary—or by the man who finally conquers him—is a thrilling anticipation.

That sneer of Baer's is pretty certain to go down into cauliflower legend along with the roar of John L. Sullivan, the taunting mockery of Jack Johnson, the snarl of Jack Dempsey.

Each of the great champions seems to have had some sort of animal conceit that set them apart, suggesting the days when men lived by sticks and stones. John L.'s roar might be traced to some cave age. The taunting mockery of Johnson heaped upon the men he fought could be followed back to a source in the jungle of Ethiopia. Dempsey's snarl was a memory of moonlit Neanderthal nights when savage men came to death grips.

Fan Ge's a Tingle Not all of that anthropology is realized by the $1.10 customer as he watches Baer skin his fangs and forget all else but the destruction of the prey before him. But whoever beholds the champion in one of these moments of unmasked ferocity must feel some responsive, chilling tingle in the blood.

Baer's broad sneer is one of the principal reasons why fighting exists and people pay to see it. He is there to watch one man master another by brute force and cunning. The prize fight is a stage production of jungle law, which is survival of the fittest. Unless the two men up there under the white lights revert to their type as destroyers, the fight is a failure, at least artistically.

Baer reverts easily, sharing his proximity to the atavistic animal with Dempsey, who became a sinewy, nerve-strung tiger when loosed from his corner.

Max has the correct Sullivanistic attitude toward the world—he can lick any man in the house—and makes no secret of his pride. He moves about in society wearing a clownish mask, but those big hands stick out from under such spangles. He doesn't hold a tea-cup right at all.

TWENTY GRAND TO RUN ON SATURDAY?

SANTA ANITA TRACK, Arcadia, Cal., Jan. 10.—Twenty Grand the great Whitney champion, now awaiting favorable weather for a comeback attempt, will be sent to the post in the Hollywood handicap Saturday if it is not raining and the track is not too heavy. Trainer William Brennan indicated today.

Twenty Grand was due to start in a special handicap yesterday but rain caused Brennan to withdraw the former Kentucky derby winner, and the race was cancelled.

At the same time it was announced that Cavalcade is due to start his westward trek from Columbia, S. C., and should arrive at Santa Anita sometime Tuesday.

Meanwhile Mate, the Bostwick star, was the only one of the big shot horses quarantined at Santa Anita to work out during the last 24 hours. The horse was clocked through the mud, in a slow mile at 1:58 2-5.

federation along the lines of the A. F. of L.

A rival of this character would be the gravest kind of a threat to the A. F. of L. with its preponderance of craft-organized unions. It would strike squarely at their most vulnerable point, separatism. Able A. F. of L. leaders have long realized the weakness of craft unionism and have clamored for a change of policy.

After years of agitating, John L. Lewis, President of United Mine Workers, largest industrial union in the country finally passed a resolution at the San Francisco convention last October authorizing vertical unions in unorganized industries, such as automobiles and rubber.

It was a halfway measure, but it was the best that Lewis and his supporters could obtain.

But now with the employers laying plans to move into this field with unions of their own, Lewis may soon win converts he was unable to obtain by persuasion.

STATE WINDING TIGHT NET ABOUT BRUNO HAUPTMANN

ALL WITNESSES PROVE STRONG

Breckenridge, Police Officer, To Follow Condon With Damaging Evidence.

FLEMINGTON, Jan. 9.—The background portion of New Jersey's case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, as outlined by Attorney General Wilentz in his summary after a jury had been selected, was nearly complete today.

Meanwhile three persons directly involved in the transactions of those hectic days, from March 1, 1932, when the Lindbergh baby disappeared, until April 2, 1932, when the ransom was paid, have positively identified Hauptmann as the man who collected the $50,000 ransom and, inferentially as the man who murdered the child.

NAMED BY THREE

The major direct accusers Hauptmann were Colonel Lindbergh, Joseph Perrone and Dr. John F. (Jefsis) Condon—one a world famous aviator, the other a Bronx taxi driver and the other an ex-school teacher who believes and asserts the Bronx is the "most beautiful" place in the world.

Dr. Condon on the witness stand today continued to make the defense lawyers very unhappy. His elaborate answers to slyly put questions had Chief Defense Counsel Edward J. Reilly groping for adequate words to frame new questions.

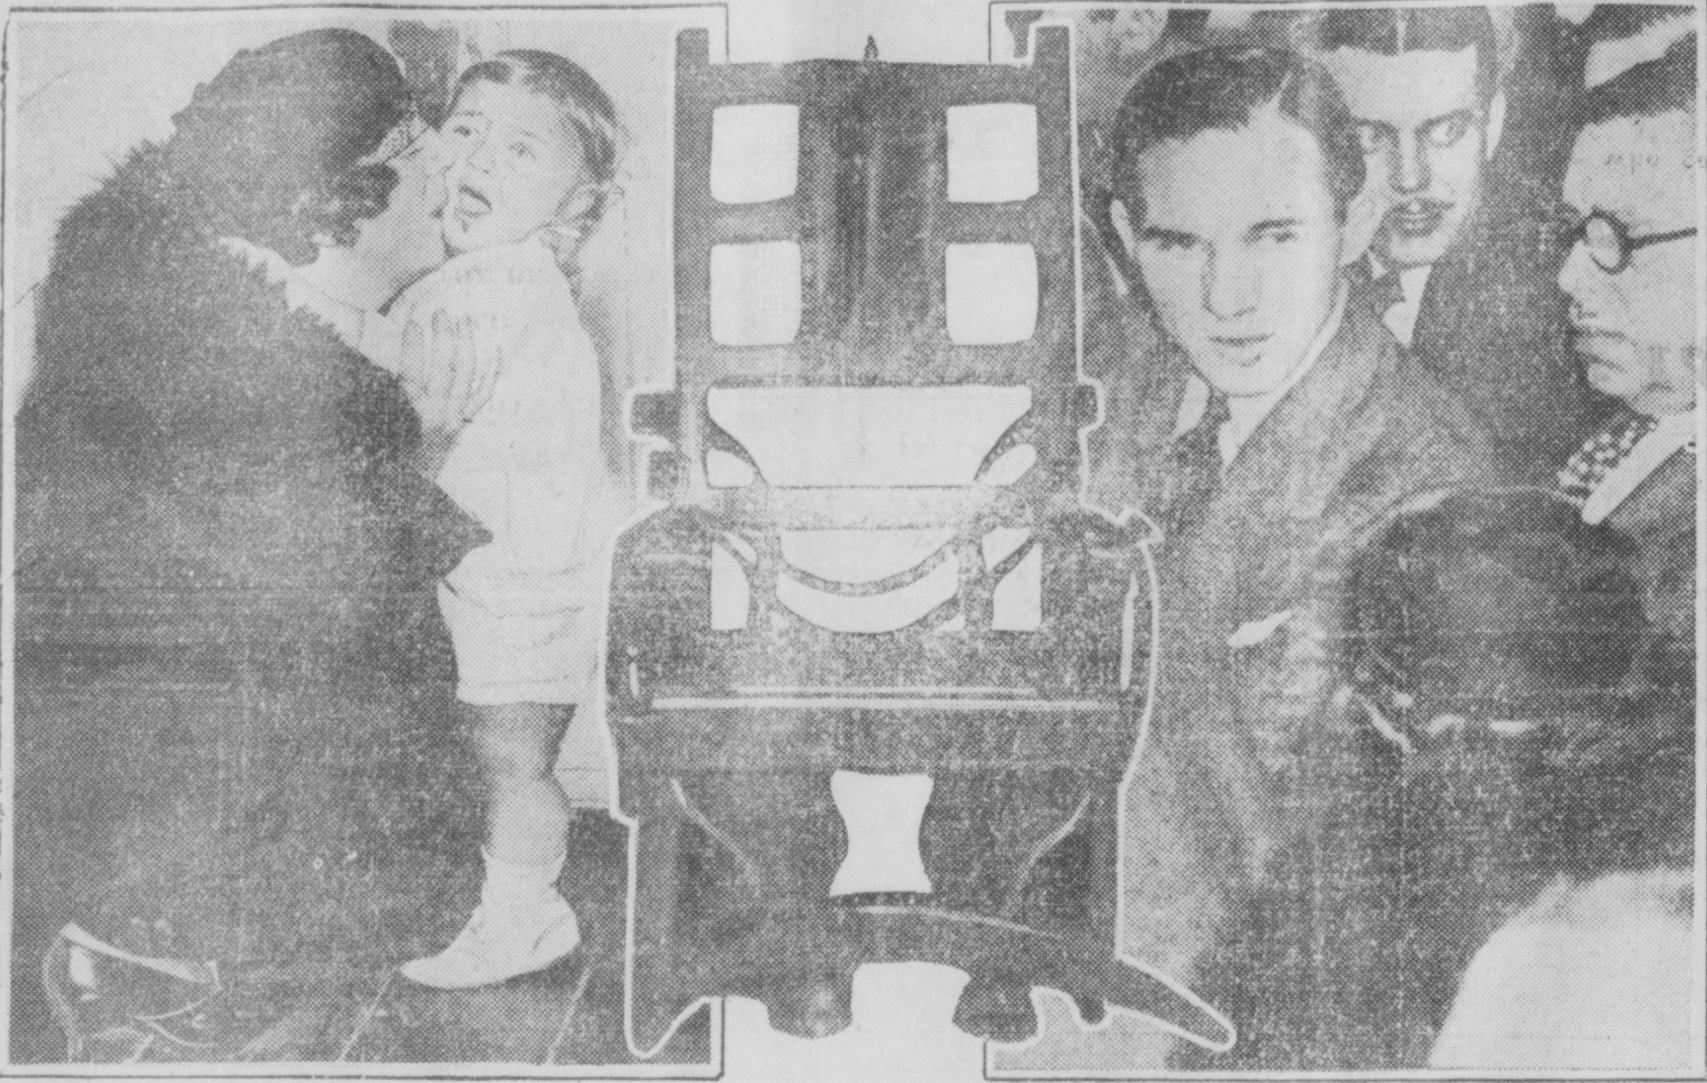

Colonel Henry L. Breckenridge, legal advisor and close friend of the victimized father in the case, and a number of police officers were to follow Condon as witnesses.

Insofar as introduced evidence goes the state appears virtually to have proven:

1. That the kidnapping and murder of the baby for a chance to collect ransom was not an "inside job," as the defense has attempted to imply.
2. That the credibility of all the main witnesses, including Dr. Condon, is excellent.
3. That none of the Lindbergh "household" nor Dr. Condon was capable of having "guilty knowledge" of any plot to victimize Lindbergh and his wife and child.

In addition, the state has demonstrated that its key witnesses, excluding Anne Morrow Lind-

Electric Chair Shadows Rest of Their Lives

Is Mrs. Bruno Richard Hauptmann thinking of electric chair which seems her husband's fate as she clasps their son, Manfred, to her (left) after another session in court in which evidence piled up against the boy's father? The New Jersey electric chair in which Hauptmann will die if convicted is seen in center. It is located at Trenton, a short distance from Flemington, where she is trying to cheer him in court (right).

bergh, have unanimously agreed that Bruno Richard Hauptmann was guilty of the entire, atrocious crime.

TO LEAD TO ARREST

From now on the trial presumably will be conducted in a manner that points the finger of guilt even more directly at Hauptmann. The attorney general is expected to lead subtly up to the date of the German carpenter's arrest on September 20, 1934, in his automobile in the Bronx. The prosecution expects to reach the events of that date "sometime next week."

From then on Hauptmann will become the object of much damaging evidence. Handwriting experts will testify that his handwriting is identical in every respect with the handwriting in the ransom notes.

Wood experts will testify that portions of the ladder were sawed from a board in the attic of his home; the police will testify that he had Lindbergh ransom money in his pocket when arrested and other officers will testify that they found over $14,000 more ransom money hidden in his garage.

OHIO CHAUFFEUR PERMITS AIRED

No half-year reduction has been made on chauffeur licenses, Registrar Frank West of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles today reminded commercial vehicle operators throughout Ohio.

These licenses are issued on a fiscal year basis of $3,000 per annum regardless of the time of application during the term. By legislative changes enacted in 1933, chauffeur licenses are issued according to a fiscal year beginning July 1 and ending June 30 of the following year.

In order to comply with the leg-

Held in Baby's Death

Willard A. Slusher, 27, of Ashland, Ky., is being held by police following the death of his daughter, Betty Jean, three months old. Exasperated by the continued crying of the baby, Slusher spanked the child and put it to bed. As a result of the slapping, Betty Jean died from concussion of the brain, the coroner said.

islative enactments, the Bureau of Motor Vehicles found it necessary to issue chauffeur licenses for a six months period during the first half of 1934. This, Registrar West believes, is responsible for the mistaken ideas and confusion on the part of many truckers and other drivers.

Chauffeurs who delayed obtaining badges until after the first of the present year under the mistaken idea of a reduction in fee were urged by Registrar West to comply immediately.

State Highway Patrolmen have been instructed to arrest truckers and others coming within the classifications specified by the legislature as "chauffeurs" who are unable to show compliance with these sections of the state motor vehicles code. To date $8,000 Ohioans are registered as chauffeurs, official figures of the Bureau show.

Why Banks

must Charge for Certain Services

There are many valuable free services which every bank is glad to render. But there are other services for which a moderate charge is entirely right and proper.

Like any other business, a bank must be operated profitably. Unless it does earn money it cannot be a safe place for its depositors' money, or continue to give the service that is expected of it.

Banks, generally, make very few direct charges, and only where they feel such charges are necessary to the proper conduct of their business. These charges are usually small in comparison with those made for similar services in other lines of business.

Every bank patron should appreciate the value of these services and cooperate with the bank in its efforts to benefit the community and every individual,

THE HEADACHE FOLLOWS

None who remembers the economic state of the world in 1914 would advance such an argument.

This is not saying that all nations discover that they are El Dorados when they go to war.

Nations embarking upon a war never inquire whether they can afford a war.

A MARATHON runner likens life to a foot race.

"Wherefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses let us lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so heavily beset us and let us run with patience the race that is set before us."

The analogy between a marathon and the race of life is, after all, not so complete as the simile suggests.

The pure love of doing is denied millions who contribute each his unidentified and often infinitesimal part to a product which is wholly impersonal.

The failure of so many, who run, to reach their goal is because they stop before they get their second wind.

The attitude of the banks, says an economist, is now more liberal, but they still draw the line at a loan in anticipation of our winning the next Irish sweepstakes.

A psychologist says that Huey Long is one of those boys who never grow up.

The name of the present heavyweight champion of the world and the date of his last fight can probably be ascertained by browsing through the old files of almost any daily newspaper.

Railroad men running a railroad in Colorado couldn't pay the interest on an RFC loan, so the government took it over and politicians will run it, paying the interest with taxpayers' money.

AT THE GRAND

There is so much real drama in the First National picture, "Side Streets," which had its local premiere at the Grand Theatre yesterday, that one is apt to lose sight of the remarkable screen acting that characterizes the production.

Aline MacMahon, portraying the role of a sedate and matronly fur shop proprietor, who had fallen in love with and married an impetuous young sailor, with a wandering foot and a roving heart, has been given a part that allows this really great actress to show to what heights she can rise in depicting suppressed emotion.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Using an altogether different, but equally effective, technique in "Woman in the Dark" (showing tonight and Friday at the Cliftona), from that employed in his earlier picture, "The Thin Man," Dashiell Hammett, America's premier writer of detective fiction, presents his latest work as "a story of dangerous romance."

The story has to do with the arrival at John Bradley's house of Louise Loring, a beautiful and mysterious woman who is seeking refuge from Tony Robson, whose attentions are displeasing to her.

Bradley is on parole, having recently been in prison for manslaughter. When he prevents Robson from taking Louise away by force, the picture races through an exciting chain of events that never slows up until the surprising and typically Hammett climax.

Who is Louise Loring? Why should she seek refuge with Bradley?

Daily Bath Is Factor in Health

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D. United States Senator from New York

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

DESPITE THE combined efforts of the medical profession, social service institutions, public health and public school officials, the welfare of many a school child is neglected. Indeed, it is amazing to learn of the many unhygienic practices still continued in some sections of the country.

A recent survey of more than two thousand school children, ranging from eight to sixteen years of age, is proof of what I say. This report indicated that though more than 98 per cent of these children bathed at least once a week, less than 50 per cent bathed more frequently.

Personal hygiene is essential to good health. Bathing is the primary requisite of all body hygiene. This was not the belief of our forefathers. At one time they were so greatly disturbed over the idea of bathing the entire body that a law was passed in Philadelphia prohibiting tub bathing. In fact the medical profession in the early part of the nineteenth century advised against frequent bathing.

Stimulating and Relaxing

Daily bathing has many advantages. In addition to removing accumulated dirt, it permits the pores of the skin to remain open.

The daily bath is stimulating and relaxing. It rouses the appetite, refreshes tired nerves and relaxes the body. Nothing is more satisfying than the friction you give your skin after you soak in a tub for a few minutes. The body becomes alive and glowing with increased vitality and energy.

Warm baths are soothing and aid in promoting rest and relaxation. They are very beneficial when taken at night just before bedtime. Mild cases of insomnia are often relieved by this simple measure.

A Daily Ritual

Cold baths are stimulating and are best taken in the morning before the day's work is begun.

Extremely hot or cold baths are often detrimental to health. Children and elderly adults should avoid them. Of course, if you are accustomed to cold showers they will not harm you. A good plan is to always follow a cold shower or tub with a brisk rub.

The young child should be taught to bathe daily. As soon as the child is old enough he may take his bath without assistance. Care should be exercised and the child warned of the danger of scalding hot water. Whenever possible the bath should be a daily ritual and practiced more frequently than once a week.

WHITE, DAVEY AT ODDS AS $8,000 INAUGURAL NEAR

WHITE IS IRED BY STATEMENT

Governor-Elect Says "After Jan. 14, Paroles Are Not For Sale."

COLUMBUS, Jan. 10.—The impending inauguration of Martin L. Davey as governor of Ohio today took on some of the aspects of those "battles of a century" in which Jack Dempsey was a drawing card.

Contrary to accepted rules of the political game, a retiring Democratic governor, George White, and an incoming Democratic governor, Davey, will sit side by side on the inaugural platform next Monday, inwardly knocking teeth at each other though for the benefit of an admiring public, smiles may wreath their faces.

For several years White and Davey have not been on the best of terms politically. Now they are engaged in an interesting exchange of invectives as the Buckeye state ever witnesses two successive governors of the same political party.

CRITICIZES $8,000

Their current dispute centers around White's veiled criticism of the $8,000 state appropriation Davey asked for the inauguration and around a remark Davey made in Kent this week about pardons and paroles not being for sale while he is governor, to which White took offense.

White deeply resented the implication in Davey's statement, which was quoted to the governor as follows:

"After Jan. 14, and for the next two years pardons and paroles in Ohio will not be for sale."

Burning with rage, Governor White dictated the following statement in reply to his successor:

"One of the most annoying problems my administration has been the appeals made to me in behalf of inmates of penal institutions by some second-rate lawyers only interested in obtaining a fee.

"Having heard many rumors about the manner in which pardons and paroles will be given under Governor Davey, I am reassured by his public statement, 'That they will not be for sale.'"

"I am sure that all those really interested in the welfare of the state and in the inmates of our

correctional institutions, will be glad to hear that the persistent rumors are, according to Mr. Davey, untrue."

"Davey, reported by Democratic state headquarters to be enroute for Washington for another conference with federal relief officials, could not be reached for comment. He was expected here tomorrow.

His lieutenant, Francis Poulson, Democratic state committee chairman, said:

"It is unfortunate such controversies have to occur. But I know nothing about it all."

RELEASES NESBITT

After issuing the pointed statement, White announced commutation of the life sentence of Jacob J. Nesbitt, Troy wife-slayer, to expire at once. Nesbitt has been hauled for Welfare Director John McSweeney.

When Senate Republicans passed up a chance to criticize Davey's request for an $8,000 appropriation for his inaugural, White did so in a letter to Finance Director Clarence Burk, giving copies to the press. He pointed out that the total cost of his two inaugurations was $3,590.

House Republicans promised "plenty of fireworks" when the appropriation bill carrying the Davey request comes up for their concurrence, probably next Tuesday.

TO FACE ILLINOIS FIVE SATURDAY EVE

Task of Stopping Froschauer, Guttchow, Riegel Tough One; Smith Is Shifted.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 10.—Ohio State university will open its Big Ten home season Saturday night against one of the most promising title contenders—the University of Illinois.

Both teams have won and lost one contest, while battling for positions in the Big Ten race this week. Ohio was defeated by Iowa and two nights later pulled an overtime game out of the fire at Michigan. After losing to Indiana by four points last Saturday night the Illini furnished the first big upset of the season on Monday evening by tripping the highly rated Purdue five, 37 to 34.

FROSCHAUER STAR
The Illini, headed by Frank Froschauer, free scoring forward who has led the Blue and Gold in baskets the last two years and was fourth in the conference scoring last year, are a slight favorite over the small Buck quintet. Guttchow is another veteran forward in good standing on the Illinois team. Whether or not the Buck guards can hold down these two aces along with Bob Riegel, sophomore center, may spell victory or defeat.

Coach Harold Olsen is continuing his policy of juggling the line up among his "nine regulars." Monday night he switched Inwood Smith, rugged football player from Mansfield, from guard to forward and he teamed up nicely with Bruce Laybourne, the Bucks high scoring ace. Just what his starting lineup will be Saturday night probably will be unknown until a few moments before game time.

FIRST SINCE DEC. 15
Saturday night's game will mark the first home appearance of the Bucks since Dec. 15 and the last until January 21 when the University of Chicago plays here.

TOURNAMENT DATES

The annual Pickaway-co basketball tournament will be held in the Circleville Athletic club gymnasium February 23 and March 1 and 2 and Dr. A. D. Blackburn, superintendent of the New Holland schools, will again be in charge. He is tournament manager by virtue of his athletes winning the county track meet last spring.

BABB TO OFFICIATE
All boys' squads in the county will enter the elimination while only the four leading girls' teams will compete, these four having the highest winning percentage during the season. As announced last week, Kroger Babb, of Wilmington, will again officiate. A popular official, Babb turned down several other offers to take the county tournament because he and Dr. Blackburn are good friends.

Drawings for the tourney will be made a few days before the meet starts.

GAME CALLED AT 8:15

Delaware on the court in that city Saturday on the court in that city Friday evening in a CBL contest. Both teams lost their first starts. The local team will leave between 5:30 and 6 o'clock with the game called at 8:15. The reserves will not play. Officials will be Dave Parks, Columbus Central football coach, and Bus McMillen, former Ohio State athlete.

SPYING on SPORTS

By BILL BRAUCHER,

Central Press Sports Writer

If Max Baer isn't a great champion, never let it be said he couldn't sneer like one. And before he leaves the ring beaten, or leaps from the fist-frying pan into the fire of Hollywood, he is going to be part of an unforgettable fighting picture.

He already has sneered enough to convince the most skeptical that here is a champion born to fight. How much he will sneer if he happens to be hurt by some ambitious adversary—or by the man who finally conquers him—is a thrilling anticipation.

That sneer of Baer's is pretty certain to go down into cauliflower legend along with the roar of John L. Sullivan, the taunting mockery of Jack Johnson, the snarl of Jack Dempsey.

Each of the great champions seems to have had some sort of animal conceit that set them apart, suggesting the days when men lived by sticks and stones. John L.'s roar might be traced to some cave age. The leering insults Johnson heaped upon the men he fought could be followed back to a source in the jungle of Ethiopia. Dempsey's snarl was a memory of moonlit Neanderthal nights when savage men came to death grips.

Fan Get a Tingle
Not all of that anthropology is realized by the $110 customer as he watches Baer skin his fangs and forget all else but the destruction of the prey before him. But whoever beholds the champion in one of these moments of unmasked ferocity must feel some responsive, chilling tingle in the blood.

Baer's broad sneer is one of the principal reasons why fighting exists and people pay to see it. They are there to watch one man master another by brute force and cunning. The prize fight is a stage production of jungle law, which is survival of the fittest. Unless the two men up there under the white lights revert to their type as destroyers, the fight is a failure, at least artistically.

Baer reverts easily, sharing his proximity to the atavistic animal with Dempsey, who became a sinewy, nerve-strung tiger when loosed from his corner.

Max has the correct Sullivanian attitude toward the world—he can lick any man in the house—and makes no secret of it in society wearing a clownish mask, but those big hands stick out from under such spangles. He doesn't hold a tea-cup right at all.

TWENTY GRAND TO RUN ON SATURDAY?

By BILL BRAUCHER,

Central Press Sports Writer

SANTA ANITA TRACK, Arcadia, Cal., Jan. 10.—Twenty Grand to run on Saturday night, now awaiting favorable weather for a comeback attempt, will be sent to the post in the Hollywood handicap Saturday if it is not raining and the track is not too heavy. Trainer William Brennan indicated today.

Twenty Grand was due to start in a special handicap yesterday but rain caused Brennan to withdraw the former Kentucky derby winner, and the race was cancelled.

At the same time it was announced that Cavalcade is due to start his westward trek from Columbia, S. C., and should arrive at Santa Anita sometime Tuesday.

Meanwhile Mate, the Bostwick star, was the on one of the big shot horses quartered at Santa Anita to work out during the last 24 hours. The horse was clocked through the mud, in a slow mile at 1:58 2-5.
